Appendix B: Standards of Practice Guidelines

The purpose of this policy is to clarify for registered members legally and ethically correct ways to present oneself to the public. NASH requires that all registered members and applicants for registered membership follow these guidelines. Following these guidelines will help reduce your likelihood of legal problems. While this document has been written with advertising and general outreach materials in mind, many of the following apply in any situation where you are asked to define, explain or even defend yourself and/or your practice, either verbally or in writing.

USE OF THE TITLE DOCTOR OR PHYSICIAN

Do not use the title doctor or physician unless you have a medical degree that is recognized in the state or country in which you are practicing. It is false representation to give the impression you are a doctor if you work as a health care professional. If you are called doctor by a patient, student or anyone else always correct them. This applies to those who have a medical degree which is not accepted in the country in which you are practicing (USA or Canada). This applies especially if you have a doctorate in another field. Do not claim to have a doctorate (PhD) unless you have one from a fully accredited university in a related field. Do not claim a doctorate for a distance learning degree. In some states or provinces you are not allowed to use the word ‘clinic.’ Check to see if this applies in your state or province.

ADVERTISING CLAIMS

Treating Disease

Do not claim that you can treat any disease, condition or ailment or imply that you can do so. Be extremely careful when speaking or writing about the treatment of particular diseases or conditions (and never offer or claim to help anybody). You can give lectures and talks on specific ailments (and place advertisements for these)—but only if the advertisement and/or lecture makes clear that you are using homeopathy to raise the level of health of a person so that the problem recedes.

NASH Status

Do not use North American Society of Homeopaths as the primary way you present yourself when advertising your services to the public. You can use the title ‘RSHom(NA)’ and explain that this means you are registered with NASH. You can describe NASH — but it should be brief.

Years in Practice

When listing the number of years you have been in practice, count only the years that you have been in full-time (or at least half-time) practice. Be prepared to be able to defend this number if there is a legal problem, i.e. do not count the years that you were a student (full-time or part-time) or were seeing just a few cases.

Comparisons

Do not compare yourself to other homeopaths (directly or indirectly) in any form of advertising. It is acceptable to compare classical homeopathy with the use of potentized remedies in non-homeopathic ways.

LEGAL RESTRICTIONS

Be sure to research the laws on the practice of medicine without a license in your state or province and be aware of what terms and actions are not allowed. Contact other homeopaths, other alternative practitioners, lawyers, local organizations etc., and please inform NASH of the status of homeopathy in your state or province.

CLIENT CONSENT

Be sure to have all clients sign a form stating that you are not a doctor or physician and that you do not treat any disease or condition. You may also state your qualifications, training and certifications on this same form.

REGISTERED MEMBERSHIP UPKEEP

If you move you are responsible for advising the office so your membership does not inadvertently lapse. If your registered membership does lapse there will be a re-instatement fee of $40.00. During the time your membership is lapsed you are not entitled to use the designation RSHom(NA) in any of your promotional materials including letterheads, business cards and leaflets.

Appendix C: Personal Consultation Notes Keeping Guidelines

Each and every page (including consent forms etc.) must contain the following information: Client's name and date of birth; page number; signature or initials of the homeopath (or other identifying mark).

The date and time of each visit are to be recorded at the beginning of the visit; each continuation sheet should record the date only.

Client's personal data to be taken at the first visit including: address, home and work phone numbers, and name of their primary care provider.

A complete homeopathic case should be taken (and properly charted/underlined) which includes subjective as well as objective findings and including: past medical history (including serious accidents, operations, illnesses, childhood illnesses, use or non-use of tobacco, alcohol and other addictive drugs).

Abbreviations and acronyms must not be used: an auditor or lay person may not be able to understand what has been written. The exception is the availability of a list of approved abbreviations and their meanings.

All mistakes are to be corrected in the following manner: a single straight line through the mistake, error noted (by writing word "error" next to the mistake) and your initials beside it. Do not use whiteout.

A written assessment must be recorded. This should include: center of gravity of the case; strength of the vital force; selection of symptoms and repertorizing chart; comparative materia medica; homeopathic prognosis.

A plan must be recorded. This should include: the name and potency of the remedy given and its source (pharmacy), selection and repetition rationale and a list of future remedies for consideration.

The following must be clearly recorded: any and all advice, recommendations, referrals and documentation for a follow up visit.

Each follow up visit (consultation) must be fully recorded in the progress notes of each subsequent office visit as above and must include: subjective and objective findings with a list of unresolved problems from previous office visits.

Each telephone call inquiry/visit (consultation), apart from appointments must be fully recorded and clearly identified as a telephone call.

All notes and papers must be secured in the file.

PERSONAL CONSULTATION NOTES STORED ON COMPUTER OR OTHER ELECTRONIC MEDIA

CONSENT & RELEASE FORMS
